

Why?

Genesis 38

In His wisdom God preserved Genesis 38 for us, not as an interruption to Joseph's story, but as an essential development to the larger metanarrative of the Scripture.

- I. To _____ Israel's _____ exile
to Egypt

- II. To _____ our presumption and
_____ our despair

The church of God has great need of these examples. For what would become of us? What hope would be left for us if Peter had not denied Christ and all the apostles had not taken offense at Him, and if Moses, Aaron and David had not fallen? Therefore, God wanted to console sinners with these examples and to say: "If you have fallen, return; for the door of mercy is open to you. You, who are conscious of no sin, do not be presumptuous; but both of you should trust in my grace and mercy" - Martin Luther

- III. To _____ us to the glory of the

Why?

Genesis 38

In His wisdom God preserved Genesis 38 for us, not as an interruption to Joseph's story, but as an essential development to the larger metanarrative of the Scripture.

- I. To _____ Israel's _____ exile
to Egypt

- II. To _____ our presumption and
_____ our despair

The church of God has great need of these examples. For what would become of us? What hope would be left for us if Peter had not denied Christ and all the apostles had not taken offense at Him, and if Moses, Aaron and David had not fallen? Therefore, God wanted to console sinners with these examples and to say: "If you have fallen, return; for the door of mercy is open to you. You, who are conscious of no sin, do not be presumptuous; but both of you should trust in my grace and mercy." - Martin Luther

- III. To _____ us to the glory of the
