

Study Questions for the Covenant of Life Opened.

(Chapters 1 to 3—Part 1.)

1. What is the subject of the first chapter?

2. What are these Heads?

A. _____

B. _____

C. _____

D. _____

3. What may be said of the last Head?

4. What is the subject of the second chapter?

5. What is the first proposition laid down by Mr. Rutherford for our consideration?

6. What observation is made on this?

7. What is the second proposition laid down by Mr. Rutherford for our consideration?

8. What observation is made on this?

9. What is the third proposition laid down by Mr. Rutherford for our consideration?

10. What is the fourth proposition laid down by Mr. Rutherford for our consideration?

11. What is the fifth proposition laid down by Mr. Rutherford for our consideration?

12. Why was Adam not predestinated to eternal life as a public person representing all his sons?

13. What is the sixth proposition laid down by Mr. Rutherford for our consideration?

14. What observation is made on this?

15. What is the subject of the third chapter?

16. What distinction must be maintained in this place?

17. What maxim is laid down for expounding and understanding “law-threatenings”?

18. What may we conclude from observing the execution?

19. What does the question before us suppose? What do we hold?

20. What is the first objection that may be brought against this expounding and understanding?

21. What does Rutherford answer?

22. Why?

A. _____

B. _____

C. _____

23. What is the second objection that may be brought against this expounding and understanding?

24. What things are to be spoken to by way of answer?

A. _____

B. _____

25. What is to be considered regarding the first?

26. What is to be considered regarding the second?

27. What is the objection that may be brought against this expounding and understanding?

28. What does Rutherford answer?

29. What is the next objection that may be brought against this expounding and understanding?

30. What does Rutherford answer?

31. What is a further objection that may be brought against this expounding and understanding?

32. How does our author answer?

33. What additional objection may be brought against this expounding and understanding?

34. How does our author answer?

35. What objection concerning the Heathen may be brought against this expounding and understanding?

36. What does Rutherford answer?

37. What is the last objection that may be brought against this expounding and understanding?

38. What answers are given to this?

39. In what two ways should promises and threatenings be considered?

A. _____

B. _____

40. What may be said of the promises as made to the elect?

A. _____

B. _____

41. What may be said of the promises as made to the reprobate?

A. _____

B. _____

42. What may be said of the threatenings to the elect?

43. What may be said of the promises to the reprobate?
