Evil Twins

(March 13, 2024)

In his recently published book, The Evil Twins of Technocracy and Transhumanism, Patrick M. Wood outlines the process that has been used by technocrats throughout the years to create a new economic system based solely on scientism (not actual science). Wood includes plenty of factual details related to exactly how technocrat globalists have taken control over and manipulated the existing economic system for themselves and where they are going with it.
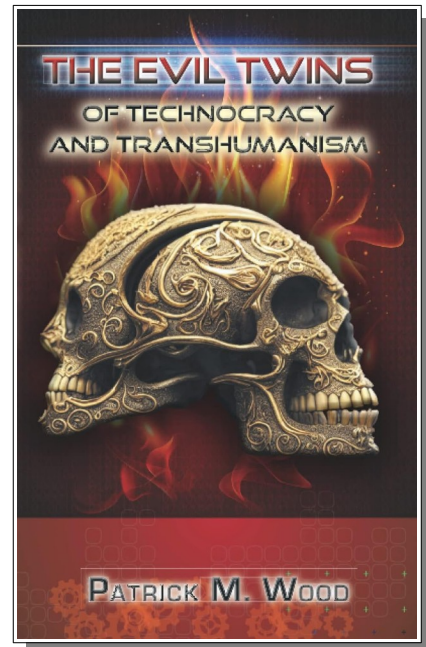

It's quite a feat they've pulled off, but unfortunately for us, Wood notes they are on the cusp of doing what they set out to do since 1932 when the first group of technocrats got together at Columbia University, probably the most "progressive" university in America. Wood gives us plenty of specifics related to what how technocrats think and manipulate. There were a few decades when the technocrats were stymied after 1932, but things picked back up again with the release of Zbigniew Brzezinski's book, Between Two Ages: America's Role in the Technetronic Era. Brzezinski chose the word "technetronic" instead of "technocracy," though he meant the latter with the use of it. Since he was then teaching at Columbia University, he was under certain constraints, but notice it did not stop him from continuing to push the concept of technocracy.

Brzezinski's book came to the attention of David Rockefeller, who was also seeking ways to gain dominance over the entire planet's economic system (not just America's). He was already a mega-millionaire but that wasn't enough. He, like numerous other people throughout the world, sought a better economic system (for themselves), and ultimately, one that they would be fully in charge of.

Rockefeller and Brzezinski then got together to form The Trilateral Commission in 1973, a think tank of hand-picked world leaders and specialists who had the same goals. Patrick Wood very early on began writing about this group of globalists.

So nearly 100 years ago, technocracy began in the USA at Columbia University. Brought forward in the 1970s by The Trilateral Commission, it became firmly ensconced in the behind the scenes efforts to completely destroy the existing economies, replacing them with something else entirely, one that fully benefits the elite as they literally steal from the rest of the populace. This new technocracy is what Klaus Schwab calls "sustainable development" or "stakeholder capitalism," but are simply terms for technocracy.

Reading through Wood's book tells me we may be too late to do anything about technocracy. For decades, these globalist unelected Leading advisor to the WEF, Yuval Noah Harari: "Covid is critical because this is what convinces people to accept total biometric surveillance", which will enable "the Stalins of the 21st century" to monitor and analyse "the brains of all the population, all the time".

"You don't need human agents. You don't need human analysers. You just have a lot of sensors, and an AI which analyses it, and that's it, you have the worst totalitarian regime in history."

technocrats have been ignored by the press. No one heard anything about what they were planning. It has only been since the CV situation that they have stepped forward out of the shadows and anonymity to announce what they say needs to occur. Since that time, they haven't stopped being public about their goals and aspirations, which is proof to me that they are extremely confident of where they've gotten the world to. They are comfortable and sure in their arrogance. They don't care if we know who they (at least some of them) are and they seem particularly delighted that we are concerned and want nothing to do with them and their plans.

You've no doubt noticed since CV in 2020, life and attitudes have changed drastically throughout the world? Families were emotionally torn apart over whether or not to get the jab and what to do about other family members who did not get it? The same applies to those who wore masks, fully believing the lies that a mask would stop CV transmission, or at least seriously reduce the chances of it.

In other words, CV and everything that came to the world because of it, was a major change agent in society. It was absolutely huge and Wood explains exactly why that was the case. You'll note in the image of Yuval Noah Harari, he talks about how important Covid was to global society. He arrogantly asserts that their new global order will come to fruition. Certainly the big goal of the technocrats is "...to monitor and analyse 'the brains of all the population, all the time.'" Though Harari is referred to as a WEF "advisor," in reality he is simply another technocrat in league with Schwab and others to force this world to the WEF's dream world.

This feat will take AI and the computing power that it is built on in order to analyze, categorize and store all that information. It's what they've been doing in China for years. Now, it's ready to be rolled out in the rest of the world. Ultimately, what's coming is "the worst totalitarian regime in history" and they seem very proud of that.

There is a specific 300-page Technocracy Study Course that Wood cites numerous times. In it, we learn how technocrats view people on this earth and the events that they cause to occur. This course came out of the Technocracy Study Group from the 1930s. Here's what Wood says about that course.

> The technocrats knew that gears, belts, and motors were easy to design and control but that unpredictable humans needed social engineering to keep them in line with the grand vision of technocracy...[1, emphasis added]

Wood quotes from the actual study course when he states:

> Leave the physical environment unaltered, or the industrial rates of operation unchanged, and any effort to alter the fundamental modes of behavior of human beings is doomed largely to failure; alter the immediate physical environment of human beings, and their modes of behavior change automatically (page 243, emphasis added)

This is what CV did. It altered the immediate physical environment and many reacted the way technocrats expected by cowering in fear of a virus that is simply like the flu. Unfortunately for technocrats, while they got many to cave to fear, a growing number of people today reject what occurred during the days of CV.

Wood states.

> From 2020 through the time of this writing in mid-2022, the world has been turned upside down with a parade of social engineering events designed to create conditions for control that will allow the Great Reset to take place: a COVID-19 panic, mRNA 'vaccine' injections, energy crisis, soaring gasoline prices, inflation, food and water shortages, a housing crisis, a financial crisis, etc. All of these events were foreshadowed by the original technocrats, who predicted the largest social engineering project in history...

Because of CV, global society lost their ability to control their own lives. Most of the world was under specific lock-down instructions. In my area, you had to have a note from your employer if you were stopped by police during the lock-down in certain hours at night. Beyond this, just about everywhere you went, you had to mask up, social distance and/or stay home as much as possible. I still find it amazing that during that lock-down period, liquor stores and strip clubs remained open (along with grocery, Big Box stores and BLM protests). Yet, churches were forced to close. We were told that it was way too dangerous to congregate with so many people in close proximity (even masked), and having the audacity to actually sing while together even if masked!

But Wood notes that Christianity is on the chopping block. Technocrats ridicule it and have done their best to purge it from society.

> Technocracy was heavily dependent on the evolutionary theories of Darwin and reflected the general criticism of the Bible that was in full swing during the early 1900s. As the Technocracy Study Course put it, 'the picture of supernaturalism of many and the special creations received a final thrust when, in 1859, Charles Darwin issued his book Origin of the Species...
> Technocrats specifically excluded biblical Christianity as a source of truth. Viewing Darwin as inerrant, they mockingly wrote that Christian principles were 'handed down from a primitive and ignorant people of the past'...They reasoned that Christianity had been defeated, that Christians were 'far removed from the pedestal upon which they had originally imagined themselves to be,' and that 'at last they were obliged to admit blood kinship with other members of the animal kingdom'

So we Christians are ignoramuses and stupid, believing in superstitious nonsense that has no basis in fact. Humans don't have souls (according to Technocrats), so there is nothing "redeemable" about us spiritually. We are merely biomass that dissolves and goes back into the earth after we die.

Any system that does not agree or work with technocracy must be defeated. So why is Islam seemingly ignored with Muslims being shipped from all over the world to western societies, including America? Simple. Muslims are being used by technocrats to foment civil strife and wars wherever they go. Once they have served their purpose, they will be dealt with by these same technocrats. Right now, Islamists are blind to the purposes of technocrats. Ultimately, they are considered canon fodder.

Since 1932, technocrats began taking of control of many areas. They already had the financial institutions so they looked to "the total net conversion of energy," which continues in earnest today. Did they do this because they actually believe in "climate change"? Not at all. They have done it because it gives them control over the energy availability and usage. They reason that too much available energy leads to things like "uncontrollable economic activity," states Wood, a good thing for the average person. This is one of the big reasons we have smart meters today, which allows the electric company to view our usage from their offices instead of having to send a person out to read your meter. It also allows them to shut down our electricity from there or, as they do in California routinely, do rolling brown outs. Customers are at the mercy of the electric companies. Do you have a back up source? Technocrats ultimately want energy conserved...for themselves and that's the other part of this picture.

The real reason we all have smart meters connected to our homes is "...that meters are able to identify, connect with, monitor, and report the usage of each energy-consuming device inside a building...[and] can control deach device through the manufacturer's installation of a special circuit board designed for such purposes..." whether it's a washing machine, dryer, refrigerator or something else. All of them can be temporarily or permanently shut off by the electric company.

Investigative journalist Whitney Webb has done much research into Bit Coin and BlackRock, among other things. She has numerous videos available that help the average person understand what is going on in the world of finance and currency.

> BlackRock, Inc. is an American multinational investment company. It is the world's largest asset manager, with $10 trillion in assets as of December 31, 2023.[2]

BlackRock CEO Larry Fink seems to have the same mindset as other technocrats (because he is one of them), that ultimately wants to take what the average person has and make it part of BlackRock's portfolio. I suggest for anyone who wants to be educated on this subject to view some of Webb's interviews about Fink is now pushing BlackRock's own crypto currency.[3][4] Oh, to hear him tell it, it's "safe and convenient" for investors. Where have we heard that before? During the Great Depression, everyone was playing the stock market. They thought they couldn't lose. Unfortunately, the only ones who won were the people at the top of the pyramid. The new money coming in from regular people was simply used to prop up the debt of those at the top. They then pulled out of the stock market at pretty much the same time, becoming seriously wealthy. The rest? Lost everything.

BlackRock wants people to invest in their new crypto currency. It's easier than creating a new digital currency. If Fink can successfully entice people into "investing" in his crypto, he stands to make even more money once/if the bottom falls out, leaving "investors" with nothing.BitCoin is one thing. BlackRock's new crypto is probably best avoided, but ask your financial advisor on that one.

Things are moving very quickly as seen by yet another country that has decided to force its population to go with biometric digital IDs.[5] In fact, if you read the article, you'll learn that this country - Nepal - has decided to mark people from birth. Years ago, you had to apply for a social security number when you reached a certain age in the USA. Tat eventually changed, assigning numbers to newly born children. Nepal is taking it one step further by assigning a digital number to each person. They'll be eventually given "smart cards," which will likely give way eventually to completely digital IDs and be tied to some type of digital passport/wallet.

I recently read that the technocrats are now starting to push for restrictions on urban or backyard gardening.[6] They say it creates too much carbon. You know, this world could not exist without carbon. Net zero cannot be achieved without negatively impacting the world. More and more true thinkers/scientists are coming out to expose the fallacies of "climate change."

EPIC: Peter Hitchens masterfully exposes the farcical nature of Net Zero, to the absolute dismay of BBC Question Time panellists and audience members.

"We didn't just close down our coal fired power stations, we blew them up, we were so certain we were right to do so. At the same time, China is building the equivalent of two new coal fired power stations a week. India has a vast expansion programme of coal fired power stations."

"The contribution which this country is making to these outcomes is not merely minimal, it's non-existent. Everything that we do is completely blotted out by what much larger countries are doing to maintain their own power."

"If you want to live in a country where nobody can afford to heat their house... if you want lots of people to lose their jobs because there's no energy, if you want to be cold all the time... then carry on believing that the demand to go for Net Zero is intelligent and thoughtful."

Wood notes that he believes the new global order is already in place (referring to remarks made by Bret Weinstein and his interview with Tucker Carlson). We are simply waiting for them to turn the key. Webb believes later this year, a catastrophic event(s) will occur that will destroy the economy and force everyone to what the technocrats "offer." All of this is being constructed right under our noses. Let's remember that God is fully in charge here and what comes to pass only does so because He allows it for His purposes.

Please understand my intentions are not to scare people. I am trying to educate. All of what is happening throughout global society should create concern in us but it should also throw us on the strong shoulders of our Lord as well. We need to depend upon Him daily and not react like the Israelites did throughout the book of Judges. We'll talk about that cycle they lived in an upcoming article. Without difficulties we would never or rarely lean on our Lord.

As more technocracy comes to the surface, I am becoming more aware of the fact that we Christians must begin looking beyond this physical life. We need to begin focusing in earnest on the grace to be given to us at the revealing of Jesus (1 Peter 1:13-15). That takes practice.

> 13 Therefore gird up the loins of your mind, be sober, and rest your hope fully upon the grace that is to be brought to you at the revelation of Jesus Christ; 14 as obedient children, not conforming yourselves to the former lusts, as in your ignorance; 15 but as He who called you is holy, you also be holy in all your conduct...

It's time.
