Follow-Up Notes

The righteous man is described as one who has God's law in his heart. How is this displayed in the descriptions of his character?

1. Read Deuteronomy 15:7-11 and Exodus 22:25-27. How do these portions of the law guide the character of the righteous?
2. Read Exodus 23:1-8. How does "speaking justice" come from adherence to this part of the law? What does it mean to "speak righteously?"
3. Some translations of verse 40 equate "because they sought refuge in Him" to "because they trusted Him." How does seeking refuge in the LORD not only imply trust but go beyond trusting? How do you "seek refuge" in the LORD?

One thing we are told to do in this Psalm (while we try to react in a proper fashion to the apparent prosperity of the wicked) is to guard the blameless and see the upright.

1. Do you focus more on the wicked or the righteous?
2. Does the culture around us want us to focus more on the wicked or the righteous? Why?
3. How does looking at the righteous help us avoid improper reactions to the power, influence or wealth of the wicked?

Do you really trust God to take care of the wicked? Are you able to wait?
